SN001: Sale of Standard Rate Goods to Registered Buyers.

SN002: Sale of Standard Rate Goods to Unregistered Buyers.

When goods subject to the standard sales tax rate are sold to buyers who are not registered for sales tax (usually individual consumers or small businesses not registered for tax) the seller charges the full sales tax. Since the buyer is unregistered, they cannot claim input tax credits. This is often a business-to-consumer (B2C) sale.

SN003: Sale of Steel (Melted and Re-Rolled) (Billets, Ingots and Long Bars).

The steel sector is governed by strict traceability and sector-specific rules. These goods are commonly traded by re-rollers and manufacturers. Tax authorities often regulate their tax treatment distinctly, sometimes applying specific tax rates or requiring compliance with additional notifications or schedules (like an SRO).

Ship breakers dismantle old ships and recover scrap steel, which they then sell. This scrap steel is often treated separately for tax purposes, recognizing the different industry context. Special rates or exemptions might apply, and tax compliance is tailored to the ship-breaking sector.

SN011: Sale of Steel through Toll Manufacturing (Billets, Ingots and Long Bars).

Toll manufacturing involves a third-party processing raw steel into finished billets, ingots, or long bars on behalf of another business. The processor issues an invoice for conversion charges (service), while the principal may generate a separate invoice for the actual product sale. The sales tax treatment can differ because ownership and processing roles are split.

SN026: Sale Of Goods at Standard Rate to End Consumers by Retailers.

Retailers selling taxable goods directly to end consumers must apply the standard rate of sales tax at the point of sale. These transactions are typically conducted through Point-of-Sale (POS) systems integrated with FBR's IRIS platform. Since consumers are typically unregistered, retailers collect the tax without input tax credit implications.

SN028: Sale of Goods at Reduced Rate to End Consumers by Retailers.

Certain essential goods, such as baby milk and books, are subject to a reduced tax rate lower than the standard 18% when sold to end consumers. This preferential rate is intended to keep vital or socially important products affordable. Retailers selling such goods must ensure that the products are correctly classified under the applicable tax schedule to qualify for the reduced rate.
